

As temperatures begin to cool down, it's the perfect time of year to curl up with a new book or revisit an old favorite. And with the holidays approaching, we're also getting ready to pick the perfect book for our favorite bibliophiles!

In this month's World Book Wired, we're highlighting Native American Heritage Month and the stories of our Indigenous peoples, getting ready for the holiday season, and exploring the origin of your favorite fall recipes. It's the season to reflect and give thanks to the people around us.

FALL IN LOVE WITH READING

INDIGENOUS STORIES

Storytelling is a beloved tradition in Indigenous cultures and is seen as a primary means to pass on knowledge over numerous generations. Explore some of our favorites today.

#NATIONALSTEMDAY

Complex concepts come alive in our Building Blocks series. Join colorful characters in graphic novel-style adventures, to explore coding, physical science, and mathematics.

FALL FLAVORS

FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS

Diwali is the annual Festival of Lights. The days-long festival's high point is the new moon, the darkest night of the lunar cycle, that arrives in the Hindu month of Kartika (October to November). Widely celebrated in all parts of India and Hindu communities worldwide, Diwali stories and rituals can differ but usually honor Lakshmi, the goddess of prosperity.
